HANG SENG-SPONSORED ICAC VIDEO COMPETITION ATTRACTS 500 YOUNG CONTESTANTS

Five hundred young people took part in a video film competition on the theme of life and wealth organised by the Independent Commission Against Corruption (ICAC). The competition was sponsored by Hang Seng Bank and co-organised by the Education Bureau, the Hong Kong Academy for Performing Arts, the Hong Kong Subsidised Secondary Schools Council and the Association of the Heads of Secondary Schools. Asia Television Limited was a supporting organisation.

The competition aims to encourage secondary school students to develop a healthy attitude towards wealth. It attracted over 80 entries from 50 secondary schools and the public. Winning and short-listed entries will be included in a moral education teaching package to be distributed to all secondary schools and will also be uploaded to the ICAC's Moral Education Website (www.icac.org.hk/me).

Officiating guests at the prize presentation ceremony included Ms Julie Mu Fee-man, Director of Community Relations; Mr Patrick Chan, Hang Seng Bank Executive Director and Chief Financial Officer; and Mr Kwan Chuk-fai, Chairman, Organising Committee of the "Wealth & Life" Video Competition.

Members of judging panel for the competition were prominent movie directors Sylvia Chang Ai-chia, Peter Chan Ho-sun, Lau Wai-keung and Joe Ma Wai-ho. The panel commended the participants for demonstrating sophisticated skills and presenting clear messages on various life issues.

TWGHs Lee Ching Dea Memorial College's production "Mystery" won three awards: the Gold Award, the Best Cinematography Award and the Best Editing Award.

The film depicts a young girl who 'sold' her time for money, only to regret that this denied her the chance to see her mother before the latter passed away.

The Silver and Bronze Awards went to Buddhist Wong Fung Ling College and Po Leung Kuk Mrs Ma Kam Ming-Cheung Fook Sien College respectively.
