Hang Seng Alerts Customers to Phishing Emails

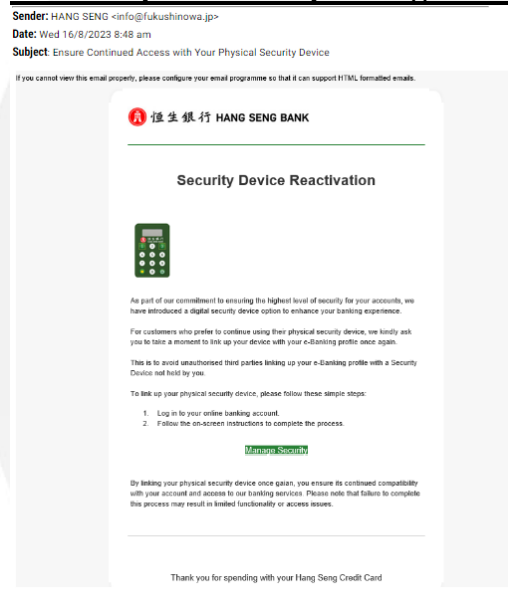

Hang Seng Bank ('Hang Seng') alerts members of the public to be vigilant against recent phishing emails purporting to be from Hang Seng. These phishing emails display the Bank's logo and lead customers to a fraudulent website which prompts them to enter personal or account details for security device reactivation.

The Bank would like to inform members of the public that it has no connection with these emails and fraudulent website. Hang Seng will never ask customers to log in to their Personal e-Banking to complete or cancel a transaction, to apply for or reactivate a security device, or to provide personal information such as their HKID number, e-Banking login credentials, credit card credentials or one-time passwords through embedded links from emails or SMS, instant messaging apps or similar channels. Members of the public should not access any links when they receive phishing emails or SMS messages related to fraudulent websites and should not disclose any personal or other information to the sites.

Below is the relevant information and a screen capture of the latest phishing emails. Although the image is a representative example, there may be slight variations on how the fraudulent emails may be displayed on their devices.
